Publisher, Journal and Author Rights

In order to publish and disseminate research articles, IJCICT required publishing rights. This is determined by a publishing agreement between the author (s) and IJCICT. This agreement deals with the transfer or license of the copyright to IJCICT and authors retain significant rights to use and share their own published articles. IJCICT support the need for authors to share, disseminate and maximize the impact of their research and these rights, in IJCICT are defined below:

1. For printing articles: Authors transfer copyright to the journal/publisher as part of a journal publishing agreement, but have the right to:
 - Share their article for Personal Use (refer Personal Use Policy), Internal Institutional Use (refer Institutional Use Policy) and Scholarly Sharing (refer Article Sharing Policy) purposes.
 - Retain patent, trademark and other intellectual property rights (including research data).
 - Proper attribution and credit for the published work.

2. For open access articles: Authors sign an exclusive license agreement, where authors have copyright but license exclusive rights in their article to the publisher. In this case authors have the right to:
 - Share their article in the same ways permitted to third parties under the relevant user license (together with Personal Use rights)
 - Retain patent, trademark and other intellectual property rights (including research data).
 - Proper attribution and credit for the published work.

Rights Granted to Publisher and Journal

For both printed and open access articles, published in proprietary titles, IJCICT is granted the following rights:

- The exclusive right to publish and distribute an article, and to grant rights to others, including for commercial purposes.
- For open access articles, IJCICT will apply the relevant third party user license where IJCICT publish the article on its online platforms.
- The right to provide the article in all forms and media so the article can be used on the latest technology even after publication.
- The authority to enforce the rights in the article, on behalf of an author, against third parties, for example in the case of plagiarism or copyright infringement.

Protecting Author Rights

Copyright aims to protect the specific way the article has been written to describe an experiment and the results. IJCCT is committed to its authors to protect and defend their work and their reputation and takes allegations of infringement, plagiarism, ethic disputes and fraud very seriously.

If any reader becomes aware of a possible plagiarism, fraud or infringement we recommend contacting to the IJCCT for the removal of the paper and initiate the legal actions as per the suggestions of in-house legal department. Note that certain open access user licenses may permit quite broad re-use that might otherwise be counted as copyright infringement. For details about how to seek permission to use an article see our permission page.
